MAIL STEAMER DEPARTURES.

The following table is a chronologically arranged list of mail steamer sailings to Europe, America, Canada, and Australia. Coast ports, Manila, and Japan are not given, for steamers are constantly sailing for those ports. All the American steamers call at Japan, and the majority of the Australian boats call at Manila, and in addition to those vessels, special steamers run there. The departure of every steamer is subject to alteration. The P. & O. mails usually reach London in about 28 days, and the French and German in about 28 or 30 days.

THE NATIONAL ARMYAL LAWYER

Track Use in Modern War

LAWYER FOR NATIONALLY ARMED

During the progress of last week's show life here was in South America preached with the same persistence and dogmatic certainty as military and non-military law which declared that historians there would be no more hand fighting. The day of the lance and bowmen was at a close and past gone. No more, except most extraordinarily exceptions, would soldiers upon any equal terms to repeat to numbers, and armament, be enabled to do much more and settle the question of superiority by means of cold steel. The future is predicted to be the result of which the fate of the might depend would be fought and long range by rifle and artillery. Armed by clever manoeuvring and strategy.

The conventions were in mutual attack, largely supported by the masses gained in the conflict with the and if the wars of the future were fought on similar lines, the deductions conclusions arrived at would be generally verified. A great mistake made, however, in assuming that the precedents of the campaign with the T and Orange Free State would not be repeated in the coming fighting.

What may be termed the soundness of a strategy trend of the movement view in so far as it applies to the use of these weapons as still to be very seriously reckoned. The modern warfare has been afforded facilities (and) the Russian army has been the opposing side came into contact with the enemy after the passage of the Yalu. The soldiers of the Mikado, in almost unbroken engagement of any importance has been fought there has been hand-to-hand fighting of a desperate and successful nature, while the enemy has been repulsed on both sides of the river. Again and again have we read the and entrenched positions after being subjected to shell and rifle fire have only been ultimately by means of the bayonet and this when the defenders were no longer beaten or demoralized by the artillery.

Up to the present in this way the cavalry arm on either side has decidedly minor one, and therefore opportunities for the use of the lance have been few. Beyond the usual scouting, vedette, and flank-guard duties, there is nothing to do but little, consequently one judges whether these two weapons equal with the bayonet, entails their value in latter-day fighting, how, as the Japanese cavalry are quality and quantity of the Russian cavalry was inferior to that of the Japanese. The Japanese reported to be much inferior to the Russian cavalry, even if an opportunity occurred for testing their own troops on other branches of cavalry warfare. The result could hardly be convincing, supposing that in the retreat of the Japanese, the Japanese cavalry was provided with the same force of the calibre of British, German or French cavalry, armed with lance and sword, to hang on the rear and harass the Russians, harrying and harassing, cutting off straggling bodies, capturing and ammunition and baggage wagons and so forth. It is not necessary to assume that the "offensive march on the rear" would have been converted into a disorderly rout, which would probably have ended at Hsichin. The many opportunities for showing their and mettle in hand-to-hand fighting as it was they did magnificent work can hardly be imagined. Just before of the day, a regiment of the or Dragons on the day he was and taken prisoner, and his company fantry were killed for miles, the most creditable of the "charge incidents" of the war would not record.

The
struts, this hand-to-hand fighting being impossible or (perhaps) the days of quelling and then rough with arms, a being, and in hood always will be, resorted to of the present and future, and bound to maintain the necessities man possible to defend themselves as an enemy. If this is not would be infinitely better to talk from the men weapons which their safety more of security."—

POLICE RECREATION CLUB

Formally Opened.

The Police Recreation Club at Valley was formally opened on 8 afternoon by Captain Baddeley, in beds of a representative gathering ladies and gentlemen. All bran the police and detective force w represented. Chief Detective In Hanson, one of the prime movers in establishing the Club, in inviting the State Superintendent to perform the duty, said—

"My, Mademoiselle, Mr. Hallifax, Mrs. B. and ladies and gentlemen!—Some time ago I was asked to read the following man's life in a newspaper:—'Some time ago a man was shot dead, but I do not know who he was.' Now, I said, that, whatever truth might be in the saying, there was comfort to be derived from the enormity; there is in the good-will of our nation, such good-will being natural outcome of duty done and the reward having been won.

"Having been asked by my countrymen to read the life of a man who had the liberty to again refer to the old saying, 'A policeman's life is not a happy one,' I have been asked to read the from Mr. Hanson, but they had grown too much excited, for, if anyone had been hard in the matter it was Mr. Hanson together with Mr. Hanson, and Tom Withers and Langley. Some time after opening a Police Club at Kewington was formed, both sides would be proud of such enjoyment. He also hoped the Club would be considered to everyone's enjoyment and not for two branches of sport alone. All the single team had just beaten the men he warned them not to bet too high, and the sides of the visitors might have to play on the other side. A game of bowls played subsequently resulted in a victory for the married over the bachelors.

A Spanish naval lieutenant remarked a gallant, but ineffectual, attack on the torpedo boat of the Russian warship in the inner basin of Port Arthur. The Russian had swum with a torpedo to the cross which the Russians have erected across the Narrows, and having accomplished this feat, he had thrown the torpedo against the Russian battleship, when, dashed through the agency of one of his lights, the torpedoes immediately exploded with a rain of shells, with the result that the torpedo exploded, and the officer was blown to pieces. Admiral Togo is a very capable and successful officer, but a junior officer wishing to lead a gallant command a example During 1926 105 tons of 2 1/2 tonnage boats, as they are called, were built in the United States, and 21,619 were lost through wrecks, fire, falling to 55,231 were killed by accidents, 9,706 died from make-logs. The are higher for 1926 than for 1925.
